Jayden and his mother went to New York Restaurant last night.

'Jayden, which starter would you prefer?' asked Mrs Lee. 'I'd prefer the garden salad to the vegetable soup. I'd like the roast chicken as my main course,' said Jayden.

'OK. I'd like the vegetable soup and the fried fish. Let me look at the desserts ... I know you like cheesecake. Which flavour would you prefer?' asked Mrs Lee. Jayden said, 'I'd prefer the chocolate flavour to the strawberry flavour.'

Mrs Lee ordered the mango pudding for herself.

The food looked great. However, some of it did not taste good. The soup was too salty. 'I'm sorry, madam. How's your fish?' asked the waiter. 'It's too spicy. I think there are chillies in the cheese sauce,' said Mrs Lee. 'Let me take the fish back and get you another one,' said the waiter.

'How are the desserts?' asked the waiter later. 'The chocolate cheesecake is too sweet. Look! There are still some big pieces of chocolate in it!' said Jayden. 'The mango pudding is terrible. It's too sour,' said Mrs Lee.

'I'm very sorry. I'm afraid one chef has put the wrong ingredients or the wrong amount of seasoning into every dish. Let me get you a sundae. The chef didn't make that!' said the waiter.
